How I See It. By: Brian Gregory

What a bright future for Eastside. This past Sunday wrapped up our annual "Youth for Christ" program. It was an exciting day. Since November many of our children and young people have spent a lot of time memorizing God's word. After our morning worship several of our young people were recognized for their memory work. How impressive it was to see so many people take the time to write God's word upon their hearts. That afternoon several of our young ladies led a women's worship service. They had the opportunity to lead prayers, songs and present a short sermon. That evening it was the young men's turn to lead our worship. The young men each showed a lot of enthusiasm for what they were doing. It was obvious everyone was well prepared.

Programs like this do not happen overnight. They take lots of planning and work to make them successful. We should never take for granted the importance of teaching and training our young people. Teaching these young men and women at an early age how to prepare lessons, read scripture, lead songs, prayers and giving them opportunities to put into practice what they have learned is important. This will have a lasting effect upon the church in the future. It is important to train and encourage leadership among our young people. If we fail to do so, the church will fail to have good leaders in the future. The greatest testament to this program and others like it will come when these young people are adults and actively involved in the church. What more could we ever want for our children? Thank you to parents and youth alike who participated in this great work.

Summits of the Psalms

By: Joe Macer

Psalm 120

120:2 Save me, O Lord, from lying lips and from deceitful tongues.

Psalms 120-134 are known as songs of ascents. As the Jewish people made their way to Jerusalem on their annual pilgrimage, they sang these songs. The journey to Jerusalem was up hill and thus the reason for the word ascents. A great amount of joy was shared by all as they made this trip to Jerusalem to worship God.

The Psalmist had live in a foreign land. He had been around the people of Meshech and Kedar. They were barbarians. They did not want peace but instead had a love for war. These were not people trained by the word of God. They were people who had lying lips and deceitful tongues. They could not be trusted. When having a discussion they could not be believed. In talking with men back from some of the recent wars they described people who said all the right things to their face and then went and did the exact opposite. This type of behavior is ingrained in some cultures. O how the Psalmist must have enjoyed being in a group of God's people going to worship! God's people must not have lying lips nor should they have deceitful tongues. God's people must be honest with their tongue. What a pleasure to be among such people.

One of my great thoughts about heaven is being among people when there is no longer any sin. In heaven, everything spoken will be true. All liars will not have a part in heaven. No one in heaven will be trying to deceive or take advantage of another. We will also being in the presence of the God of the universe who cannot lie. What a wonderful place it will be!
